Dear Mr. Kuhrt:

Thank you for the very thoughtful gesture in forwarding "The Story of the Winged S." I received it today, and although I have only had a brief opportunity to glance through the book, it has certainly captured my imagination and I am looking forward to reading it in detail.

We enjoyed the discussions on your AH-3 proposal and also hope that a favorable reaction will be forthcoming.

Most sincerely,

Dear General Knowles:

Attached you will find an autographed copy of Igor Sikorsky's book "The Story of the Winged S" which I have been meaning to send to you for some time now. I hope you will find it an interesting and entertaining book.

Again, I would like to thank you for the time you spent with us reviewing our AH-3 proposal. We are continuing our discussions with Army personnel and hope that a favorable reaction to our proposal will be forthcoming.

I do hope that we can meet again in the near future.

Dear Mr. Kuhrt:

Thank you for your letter of 22 November 1969 concerning the AH-3 proposal.

I was most interested in your company's presentation, particularly since the proposal utilizes well-proven components of helicopters currently in service. It would appear that the developmental work and experience gained with these components would place you in an excellent position in any future attack helicopter competition the Army might hold. I'm certain that your contacts at AMC will keep you informed as to the proper time and manner of submitting bids.

Your continuing interest in the Army's attack helicopter program is appreciated.

Most sincerely,

RICHARD T. KNOWLES
