

Mr. Knoble:

In Saigon they tell the story of the $20,000 prize Texas bull sent over under the U.S. aid program to improve the breed of Vietnamese cattle. He was put in a field with local cows, but displayed no interest at all. After hasty consultations, the bull's Texas breeder was flown out to Saigon. He walked up to the bull and held what appeared to be a whispered conversation with him. The beast promptly began making vigorous approaches to the cows. Afterward, U.S. and Vietnamese officials asked what had happened. "Well," drawled the Texan, "I was able to clear up a misunderstanding. He thought he was over here purely as an adviser."

And that ain't a lot of bull!!
