THE FRONT LINE
of Military publishing

Established in 1977 as Dave Turner and Associates, to become Turner Publishing Company in 1985, the Company has earned a worldwide reputation as the nation's leading publisher of military association histories.

Preserving military history--the legacies of the men and women who fought for the cause of freedom--is our speciality. Our books are unique because the special stories and biographies are told from the memories of the veterans who lived the history which creates a military history classic. How often do you pick up a book at the library or the bookstore and read about the experiences of hundreds of men or women "who were there."

What makes Turner Publishing Company stand out as the leader in the publishing of military association history is our professionally trained staff dedicated to this field. We are a full-service publisher providing our clients services including: research and writing, typesetting, editing, photographic reproduction, professional design, printing, binding, warehousing, shipping and nationwide marketing.

The first military veterans' organization history published by Turner was for the Hump Pilots Association, titled "China Airlift." That publication was soon followed by "General Chennault's Flying Tigers," "the P-47 Thunderbolt," "P.T. Boats" and many other titles. Through its dedicated history with over 100 books published, Turner Publishing Company has compiled infantry, armored, naval, and marine publications. Among the many quality titles produced are: "River Rats," Red River Valley Fighter Pilots; "Legacy of the Purple Heart;" "American Ex-Prisoners of War;" "Trim but Deadly," a history of Destroyer Escorts and their sailors; "Marine Corps Aviation;" "U.S.A. Airborne 50th Anniversary;" "Guadalcanal Legacy;" "The Battle of Iwo Jima and the Men Who Fought There;" "Korean War Veterans" and "Harvard - The North American Trainers In Canada."
