

COMPANY "E"
1ST AIT BRIGADE
Fort Dix, New Jersey

13 January 1966

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Frederick A. Corbin was a member of this Company for almost eight weeks, beginning 8 November 1965. He underwent advanced individual training as an infantryman.

During this time the scores he attained on various tests were far above average. He did have minor problems with physical actions requiring much coordination (when firing an automatic weapon, e.g.). Despite this slight difficulty; however, he was still well above the mean.

Corbin's main strongpoint is his leadership ability. He acted as a platoon guide with us. This means he was one of the top five men in leadership ability in a Company of approximately 180. In his case he acted as a platoon sergeant for about forty trainees and was under the supervision of a non-commissioned officer.

Overall you will find that he meets the highest standards of reliability, cooperativeness, and leadership. I strongly recommend Fred Corbin for any and all employment and especially jobs concerning personnel management.
