INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this supplement is to provide a recorded and factual history of F Battery, 79th Aerial Rocket Artillery, 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) during the period 1 February 1972 through 31 July 1972.

FORMATION AND DEVELOPMENT

A History of E Battery, 79th (ARA), 1st Cavalry Division would be incomplete without mention of units from which it evolved.

The U.S. Army's first Aerial Rocket Artillery unit was C Battery, 2nd Battalion (Composite), 42nd Artillery. It was activated on 13 Feb 1963, at Fort Benning, GA. On that date, the unit was re-designated 377th Artillery. The mission of the 377th Artillery was to develop tactics and techniques which would provide effective aerial artillery fire support for an airmobile division.

Upon completion of the initial development and testing phase, the aerial rocket artillery battery was expanded to a battalion on 30 April 1964. The period from June 1964 to June 1965 was one of intensive training. During this period the battalion developed individual skills, coordinated unit operations, and combined arms operation in preparation for exercise Air Assault II, the final test of the "Airmobile Concept". After successfully completing that test, the battalion set upon perfecting what they had developed and demonstrated to be an invaluable asset. By the end of June, the first aerial rocket artillery battalion was ready for use as an integral element of the world's first Airmobile Division.

On 1 July 1965, the 377th Artillery was re-designated, 2nd Battalion, 220th Artillery to form an element of the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile). The battalion consisted of three firing batteries and one headquarters battery. During the first weeks of July 1965, the battalion reorganized, effected necessary personnel changes, and was refitted with equipment in conformity with a newly promulgated TOE. Emphasis was placed on training assigned personnel in the intricacies of aerial rocket artillery operations. On the 28th of that month, the President issued the order dispatching the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) to the Republic of Vietnam.

In 1968, C Battery, 2nd Battalion, 20th Artillery adopted their "Blue Max" callsign. Since that time, the "Blue Max" has become known throughout Vietnam. AH-1G Attack Helicopters bearing the distinctive blue maltese cross has provided invaluable support for U.S. and allied forces. On 1 August 1971 C G Battery, 2nd Battalion, 20th Artillery was re-designated F Battery, 79th Aerial Field Artillery, 3rd Brigade (Sep), 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile).

As Vietnamization proved successful, and U.S. Troops were withdrawn, the 3rd Brigade of the 1st Cavalry Division "stood down". Remaining units were placed under the operational control of "Task Force Gary Owen" which was formed on 18 June 1972. After 7 years of distinguished service F Battery, 79th Aerial Field Artillery was inactivated.

HISTORY OF THE "BLUE MAX"

The "Blue Max" was derived from the ancient order of the "Black Max". Legend places its beginning at the time of the Crusades. The purpose of the Black Max was to identify a knight who had gone astray and had violated the code of knighthood. The Black Max was believed to possess unusual powers. If it were worn continuously for a period of one year, it would endow its bearer with the strength to overcome his deficiency. In time it was "found" that the Black Max had the power to accomplish its purpose in less than one year. In fact it could accomplish its purpose in one week, provided two conditions were met. (1) the Black Max must be worn each day at a prescribed time for not less than a one hour period, and (2) the recipient must make a concerted effort to correct his wrong doing. At the height of the Prussian Empire, an award to honor their "Knights" in battle was presented. It was known as the "Blue Max". During World War I, the "Blue Max" was the German equivalent of our Congressional Medal of Honor.

IN MEMORY

They reached the area that Charlie was in not to far from the border-line.
The leadship rolled in and started to expend followed by 739.

Down, down the wingship came spitting out rockets and lead.
Down, and down dived 739
not a word over the radio was said.
Straight and true the brave men flew until the clock ran out of time____
And pieces were left as evidence T'was the death of 739.

Ask any pilot that flies at nite
the strange things he must see,
The shadow forms that don't seem right and the things that just can't be.

Ask him about the phantom Cobra
that seems to follow behind.
I'm sure he'll tell about the Lord's own wingship
The ghost of 739.

"Blue Max 68P"

IN MEMORY

Many odd things seem to happen in the chaos of passing time.
And there is a story I have to tell about the ghost of 739.

In the "T.O.C" came a distant voice
as it broke the still nite air.
"It's Blue Max we need!" "It's Blue Max you'll get held tight and we'll be there."

In the quiet of an Asian morn out of bed two men did climb.
A Combat mission they were to fly
in the wingship 739.

Four brave men in the early hours
dashed out to the chilly line.
Only fate knew what she had in store
for the two in 739.

They started their engines and off they flew like thunder in a cloudless sky.
Four bold men in death-dealing aircraft
perchance to live, perchance to die.

DESCRIPTION OF THE COAT OF ARMS

TWENTIETH FIELD ARTILLERY

BLAZON

SHIELD: Gules, on a bend or a fusil of the field.

CREST: On a wreath or and gules issuant from base a demi-trident with prongs in the form of a fleur-de-lis of the first, looped about its shaft with ends upturned and forked a ribbon of the second edged vert.

SCROLL: Enscribed with regimental motto: "Duty, not reward".

SYMBOLISM

SHIELD: The field of red represents the artillery. For its part in breaching the Hindenburg Line in 1918, the 20th Artillery Regiment won the right to include the golden bar on the shield. The red diamond represents the 5th Division, the regiment's parent organization during World War I, and is the same design as that division's shoulder patch.

CREST: The golden trident, simulating a fleur-de-lis refers to the organization's participation in the D-Day landing in Normandy during World War II. The invasion was known as Operation Trident. The ribbon is in the colors (red and green) of the Belgian Fourragere for which the 20th Artillery Battalion was twice cited (for action in Belgium and the Ardennes) during World War II.

A LETTER OF COMMENDATION

13 May 1972

The purpose of this memorandum is to report on the superb performance of your unit:

"F" Battery-79th Aerial Field Artillery

1. During this period, I was on the ground in An Loc with the Division Commander of the 5th ARVN Division. The perimeter was the sum total of 1-grid square. Elements of the 5th, 7th, and 9th NVA Division supported by modern tanks converged on this little perimeter. There was no artillery covering An Loc and after one week no artillery was able to fire out from within. Additionally, there were no friendly forces outside to provide security or any form of early warning. The area was attacked day and night. Anti-aircraft fire from 23MM, 37MM, .51 caliber, and other assortment of weapons rendered an extreme hazard to aircraft.
2. To come to the essence of this commendation, let me state in Dough-boy-foxhole language what your unit did to save me and a small handful of Americans, plus an ARVN Division. The aforementioned unit went far beyond expectation of normal support of all the massive support that was provided me at An Loc to coordinate, the Cobra emerged as supreme. Every radio screamed when they heard Cobras were on the way, mainly because of their cheerful and willing pilots, the extreme accuracy of the weapons, its built-in own FAC, own gunner-pilot, and no time was wasted in engaging the targets. Noteworthy was the ability to strike from high or low level and its short turn-around time for re-fuel, re-arm. The importance of this support is beyond my faculty to report. This unit was the mainstay in brunting the big tank attack, 12-15 April 1972. The exact number of tanks destroyed I am not sure, but whatever the number, it was great. Additionally, the Cobras at countless times supported ARVN Infantry trying to re-gain lost ground. The accuracy and closeness is no doubt unparalleled. An Loc is still in friendly hands.
3. In my opinion, I truly believe that this type support can only be labeled as unprecedented. Aside from the support, can-do attitude, and the feeling of warmth for the men on the ground were of the highest order. The everlasting statement by the individual pilots which stated "I'll be back as soon as I can re-arm," is best described as "nothing more could have been asked."
4. I highly recommend the Presidential Unit Citation and any other valor awards that can be bestowed upon this fine unit.

WILLIAM H. MILLER
Colonel, Infantry
Senior Advisor, 5th ARVN Division

OPERATIONAL SUMMARY

DURING THE PERIOD 1 FEB 1972 THRU 31 JULY 1972, F BATTERY, 79TH AERIAL FIELD ARTILLERY, 3RD BRIGADE (SEPERATE), 1ST CAVALRY DIVISION (AIRMObILE), CONTINUED TO PERFORM ITS MYRIAD ASSORTMENT OF MISSIONS. IN A GENERAL AND DIRECT SUPPORT ROLE, THE UNIT SUPPORTED MEDICAL EVACUATIONS, TROOP INSERTIONS AND EXTRACTIONS, VISUAL AND ELECTRONIC DAY/NIGHT SURVEILLANCES, AND CLOSE AIR SUPPORT FOR FRIENDLY TROOPS IN CONTACT. AS U.S. TROOP WITHDRAWAL CONTINUED, AND THE ROLE OF U.S. FORCES WAS DOWNGRADED, "BLUE MAX" FOUND THEMSELVES IN AN EVEN GREATER DEMAND. MISSIONS THAT HAD BEEN PERFORMED BY AVIATION UNITS WHICH HAD SINCE "STOOD DOWN", BECAME A PART OF THE BATTERY'S RESPONSIBILITY. FLIGHT HOURS INCREASED EACH MONTH, UNTIL THEY PEAKED DURING THE MONTH OF APRIL WHEN THE ENEMY LAUNCHED THEIR SPRING/SUMMER OFFENSIVE AGAINST LOC NINH-AN LOC. IN THAT MONTH ALONE 1623 COMBAT HOURS WERE FLOWN. THIS WAS BY FAR THE GREATEST NUMBER OF COMBAT FLIGHT HOURS EVER LOGGED BY ANY U.S. ARMY AVIATION UNIT OF COMPARABLE SIZE IN THE 10 YEAR VIETNAM CONFLICT. THIS SIX MONTH PERIOD, HIGHLIGHTED BY THE OFFENSIVE WAS TO SEE ARVN AND US. AIRMEN ENGAGING ENEMY FORCES EQUIPPED WITH THE MOST SOPHISTICATED WEAPONS THEY HAD THUS FAR EMPLOYED IN THE WAR. DURING THE OFFENSIVE WHICH BEGAN ON 5 APRIL 1972, "BLUE MAX" PROVIDED CONTINUOUS DAY AND NIGHT AERIAL ROCKET ARTILLERY SUPPORT AGAINST NUMERICALLY SUPERIOR ENEMY FORCES WHICH HAD SURROUNDED THE CITY OF AN LOC. THE ENEMY'S GOAL, AND ONE THAT WAS PUBLICLY ANNOUNCED TO THE WORLD WAS TO CAPTURE AN LOC AND ESTABLISH A "PEOPLES COMMUNIST GOVERNMENT" THEREBY PROVING THAT U.S. VIETNAMIZATION EFFORTS IN SOUTH VIETNAM HAD FAILED. IN THEIR GALLANT SUPPORT, "BLUE MAX" AVIATORS ENCOUNTERED THE MOST INTENSE ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE EVER EXPERIENCED BY U.S. ARMY AVIATION AT ANY TIME OR PLACE IN ITS HISTORY. DAILY MISSIONS BECAME DARING ENCOUNTERS

IN WHICH THE COBRA GUNSHIP WAS FITTED AGAINST ENEMY TANKS, MISSILES, AND ANTI-AIRCRAFT WEAPONS OF VIRTUALLY EVERY CALIBER IN THE ENEMY ARSENAL. WITH ARTILLERY SUPPORT NON EXISTENT, FRIENDLY FORCES WERE ON THE BRINK OF DEFEAT ON SEVERAL OCCASIONS. IN EACH INSTANCE "BLUE MAX" WAS DECISIVE IN DENYING ENEMY FORCES AN ASSURED VICTORY. WHEN INCLEMENT WEATHER, AND THE PROXIMITY OF FRIENDLY FORCES TO THE ENEMY PRECLUDED THE USE OF HEAVY TACTICAL AIR SUPPORT, "BLUE MAX" WAS THE ONLY AIR SUPPORT WHICH COULD BE EMPLOYED. AFTER TWO AND ONE-HALF MONTHS OF SAVAGE FIGHTING, 3 BADLY BATTERED ENEMY DIVISIONS (5TH-7TH AND 9TH NVA) ABANDONED THEIR OFFENSIVE WITH VIRTUALLY NO GAINS IN MR III. THIS BATTLE HAS SINCE PROVEN TO BE THE IMPETUS FOR THE ARVN AND THE SOUTH VIETNAMESE PEOPLE TO DEFEAT AND DRIVE THE COMMUNIST AGGRESSORS FROM THEIR COUNTRY. DURING THIS PERIOD ALONE, (5 APRIL THRU 25 JUNE 1972), "BLUE MAX" WAS CREDITED WITH 1039 ENEMY KILLS, AND AN IMPRESSIVE NUMBER OF ENEMY WEAPONS AND SUPPLIES; TO INCLUDE 12 TANKS DESTROYED AND 4 DAMAGED BEYOND USE. ALTHOUGH THIS IN ITSELF WAS A MONUMENTAL EFFORT, THE UNIT'S GREATEST ACCLAIM LIES IN THE COUNTLESS U.S. AND ARVN SOLDIERS IT HAD SAVED BY ITS COURAGEOUS AND RESONSIVE SUPPORT. FOR ITS ACTIONS, BATTERY, 79TH AERIAL FIELD ARTILLERY WAS RECOMMENDED FOR THE U.S. PRESIDENTIAL AND VALOROUS UNIT CITATIONS, THE VIETNAMESE GALLANTRY CROSS WITH PALM, AND THE U.S. ARMY AVIATION UNIT OF THE YEAR. ALTHOUGH ITS SUCCESSES WERE MANY, THEY WERE NOT ACCOMPLISHED WITHOUT LOSSES. THIRTY-THREE PERCENT OF THE UNIT'S AVIATOR PERSONNEL WERE KILLED IN ACTION, AND OTHERS HAD BEEN WOUNDED. OF THE ORIGINAL 12 COBRA GUNSHIPS IN THE BATTERY INVENTORY, 75% HAD BEEN LOST TO BATTLE DAMAGE. OF THE 21 GUNSHIPS WHICH WERE FLOWN AGAINST THE ENEMY, ONLY TWO ESCAPED WITHOUT BATTLE DAMAGE. THE GALLANTRY OF THE AVIATORS OF "BLUE MAX" HAS BEEN RECOGNIZED BY THE RECOMMENDATION OF ONE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS, 17 SILVER STARS AND 33 DISTINGUISHED

FLYING CROSSES. AFTER THE ENEMY HAD BEEN DEFEATED AT AN LOC, "BLUE MAX" WAS DEPLOYED TO MILITARY REGION I TO PARTICIPATE IN THE QUANG TRI OFFENSIVE. THE UNIT DEPARTED LONG THANH ON 25 JUNE 1972 AND WAS OPERATIONALLY READY FOR ITS 1ST COMBAT MISSION ON 27 JUNE 1972. DURING THE MONTH PERIOD WHICH WOULD BE THE LAST THE UNIT WOULD SERVE IN VIETNAM, "BLUE MAX" PROVIDED AERIAL FIELD ARTILLERY SUPPORT FOR FOUR MAJOR INSERTIONS OF SOUTH VIETNAMESE MARINES INTO AND AROUND THE CITY OF QUANG TRI. AFTER 7 YEARS OF DISTINGUISHED SERVICE, "BLUE MAX" RECEIVED ORDERS TO "STAND DOWN". THE LAST COMBAT MISSION WAS FLOWN ON 31 JULY BY CAPTAINS BILLY H. CAUSEY-PAUL J. KEDROW-THOMAS W. GARRET AND 1/LT JOHNNY F. GANAS.
