

We have learned to handle the enemy's use of natural camouflage in the jungle. Our brave—there is no better term to describe them—C-123 "Ranch Hand" crews come in low and slow, spraying the same kind of defoliant we use in our gardens at home, to deny the enemy shelter under a dense jungle canopy.