50.	1600	From Division: Confidential: Soldiers of an enemy unit who have attacked a fire base and been defeated are particularly vulnerable to surrender and Choi-Hoi appeals. If given immediately a specific way to give up, they are very likely to do so. Commanders will make plans for each fire base for bringing in PWS/Ralliers. Plans should designate at least one pre-planned safe area, lane or approach for reception of PWS/Ralliers. Approach should offer safe entry to a surrendering enemy soldier during daylight hours. One purpose of the plans is to allow the rapid coordinated use of airborne or ground loud speakers in support of fire bases. Safe lanes or Rallying points should be in open areas, land marks, such as roads or trail should be easily recognizable to the potential rallier. Approaches should offer good fields of fire for the U.S. order to defeat enemy rushes. The plans
