FYI, Sisco to Chiefs, last week:

Mr. Sisco then talked some about the Eastern Mediterranean and in particular the vote on Turkish Military Assistance. He said Admiral Zumwalt's testimony had not been helpful. The bill will come up tomorrow and the vote is going to be touch and go. He is very worried about the outcome of the vote. Even a partial lifting of the embargo will have good effect. However, Congressmen are being bombarded by their constituents urging them to vote against resumption of aid.

If we lose in Turkey we could very easily also lose in Greece. The radicals will force Caramanlis to get out of NATO and force the U.S. out of Greece.
