Dear Admiral Zumwalt,

Many, many thanks for the photo of you and Lieutenant Commander William Norman. It arrived just in the nick of time. The final proofs for The Golden Thirteen are just going off to the printer this week, because we hope to have the completed book ready sometime next month. The production editor tells me that we are able to make a timely substitution for a picture that showed you with a group of enlisted men. Since this book is almost completely about black officers, the shot of Bill Norman is especially appropriate.

Sincerely yours,

Paul Stillwell
