

250 Soldiers Still Listed As Captured or Missing

By a Times Staff Writer

WASHINGTON — More than 250 soldiers still are considered captured or missing, according to what Defense Department officials say is the Pentagon's current list.

The roster contains three categories including those listed as missing in action, those believed captured and those missing in circumstances not directly related to combat. The latter category, "non-hostile missing," includes situations such as aircraft accidents.

Officials say it is possible that the status of "a few" of those listed below may have been changed since the quarterly report was compiled. Each change would have been announced separately by the Pentagon and would be reflected in the next published list, they said.

Names and ranks of those soldiers still listed as missing or captured and the dates they were lost are:
