

3. A program of disposal of the agricultural surpluses in Eastern Europe must include steps for increasing their utilization and consumption by the population. The EEC, which has a surplus of agricultural products, can be expected to take steps to increase their utilization and consumption. The EEC is also expected to take steps to increase the utilization of agricultural products in the EEC. The EEC is also expected to take steps to increase the utilization of agricultural products in the EEC.

For all these countries will be willing or able to spend billions for the disposal of agricultural surpluses. Although such spending will be necessary to increase the utilization of agricultural products, it is not clear that the EEC will be able to do so. The EEC is also expected to take steps to increase the utilization of agricultural products in the EEC. The EEC is also expected to take steps to increase the utilization of agricultural products in the EEC.

4. The EEC is also expected to take steps to increase the utilization of agricultural products in the EEC. The EEC is also expected to take steps to increase the utilization of agricultural products in the EEC. The EEC is also expected to take steps to increase the utilization of agricultural products in the EEC.

CONFIDENTIAL