19. THE SYSTEM OF INDIRECT TAXES IN VIET-NAM, by Milton C. Taylor, The Michigan State University Viet-Nam Advisory Group, Saigon, March, 1960, 118 p.

Examines the system of indirect taxes and the expansion of revenue from them. Nine taxes compose the indirect tax system, of which the greatest in importance is the production tax - a combination producer's sales tax and an import duty. Favors continuation of the indirect tax system to provide the needed revenues until such time as the direct tax can be strengthened. Included are recommendations for an increase in the tax inspection force in Saigon-Cholon and adjustments of inequities of taxation. Previous MSU studies were made on the Vietnamese income, real property and patente taxes.

GOVERNMENT AND PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION
LOCAL GOVERNMENT

20. ORGANIZATION OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT IN URBAN CENTERS THROUGHOUT VIETNAM; memorandum from the Advisory Section of Assistant Director for Public Administration USAID, to Secretary General Ton That Chuoc, Ministry of Interior, Saigon, June 27, 1969, (various paging)

Urbanization is now taking place in a framework of local government not designed to cope with the accompanying problems. To remedy the situation, this study finds urban government must be organized and suggests 3 alternatives: (1) autonomous cities; (2) a classification plan for villages; or (3) chartered cities.
